Where: Pérez Art Museum Miami

When: Through June 28

Why It's Worth a Look: The Miami native is best known for hand-built ceramics that transform everyday objects—clocks, telephones, mirrors—into anthropomorphic, spirited figures. For his first hometown museum solo, he will present new ceramics, wood sculptures, and a large bronze.

Know Before You Go: This show is one you can smell as well as see. The installation includes clay-painted walls and herbal scents.
